In ways that would have amazed 18th-century Georgians, the University has continued the course its founders laid down in its Charter 225 years ago to become the State's most comprehensive and diversified institution of higher education. And there is exciting promise for future generations as UGA deepens its offerings in engineering and medicine, takes leadership in environmental sustainability, and expands its facilities on campus and across the globe – to continue serving the citizens of Georgia and sharing its expertise with the world.

General Information

ABOUT THE INSTITUTION

History and Location: Chartered by the Georgia General Assembly on January 27, 1785, the University of Georgia is the nation's first state-chartered university. In 1872, the University of Georgia was designated the state's land-grant institution and in 1980 was accorded sea-grant college status. The University's main campus is located in Athens-Clarke County, Georgia, approximately 60 miles northeast of the state capital of Atlanta.

Academic Schools and Colleges: The University is comprised of sixteen schools and colleges: Agricultural and Environmental Sciences; Arts and Sciences; Business; Ecology; Education; Environment and Design; Family and Consumer Sciences; Forestry and Natural Resources; Graduate School; Journalism and Mass Communication; Law; Pharmacy; Public Health; Public and International Affairs; Social Work; and Veterinary Medicine.

THE MISSION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

The University of Georgia, a land-grant and sea-grant university with statewide commitments and responsibilities, is the state's oldest, most comprehensive and most diversified institution of higher education. Its motto, "to teach, to serve, and to inquire into the nature of things," reflects the University's integral and unique role in the conservation and enhancement of the state's and nation's intellectual, cultural, and environmental heritage.

The University of Georgia shares with the other research universities of the University System of Georgia the following core characteristics:

- a statewide responsibility and commitment to excellence and academic achievements having national and international recognition;
- a commitment to excellence in a teaching/learning environment dedicated to serve a diverse and well-prepared student body, to promote high levels of student achievement, and to provide appropriate academic support services;
- a commitment to excellence in research, scholarship, and creative endeavors that are focused on organized programs to create, maintain, and apply new knowledge and theories; that promote instructional quality and effectiveness; and that enhance institutionally relevant faculty qualifications;
- a commitment to excellence in public service, economic development, and technical assistance activities designed to address the strategic needs of the State of Georgia along with a comprehensive offering of continuing education designed to meet the needs of Georgia's citizens in life-long learning and professional education;
- a wide range of academic and professional programming at the baccalaureate, master's, and doctoral levels.

With its statewide mission and core characteristics, the University of Georgia endeavors to prepare the University community and the State for full participation in the global society of the twenty-first century. Through its programs and practices, it seeks to foster the understanding of and respect for cultural differences necessary for an enlightened and educated citizenry. It further provides for cultural, ethnic, gender, and racial diversity in the faculty, staff, and student body. The University is committed to preparing the University community to appreciate the critical importance of a quality environment to an interdependent global society.

As a comprehensive land-grant and sea-grant institution, the University of Georgia offers baccalaureate, master's, doctoral, and professional degrees in the arts, humanities, social sciences, biological sciences, physical sciences, agricultural and environmental sciences, business, ecology, environmental design, family and consumer sciences, forest resources, journalism and mass communication, education, law, pharmacy, public health, social work, and veterinary medicine.

The University attracts students nationally and internationally as well as from within Georgia. It offers the state's broadest array of possibilities in graduate and professional education, and thus a large minority of the student body is post-baccalaureate. The predominantly Georgian undergraduate student body is a mix of highly qualified students originally admitted as freshmen and selected transfer students principally from other University System institutions.

With original scholarship, basic and applied research, and creative activities constituting an essential core from which to draw, the impact of the land-grant and sea-grant mission is reflected throughout the state. Cooperative extension, continuing education, public service, experiment stations, and technology transfer are all designed to enhance the well-being of the citizens of Georgia through their roles in economic, social, and community development.

As it has been historically, the University of Georgia is responsive to the evolution of the state's educational, social, and economic needs. It aspires through its strategic planning to even closer contact and interaction with public and private institutions throughout the state as well as with the citizens it serves.

THE UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA STRATEGIC PLAN

The University of Georgia's Strategic Plan for the First Decade of the Twenty-First Century was adopted in late 2000. Each of the major planning units, including all of the University's colleges and schools and major administrative units, adopted a strategic plan as part of that same process. Each plan guided the planning unit toward achievement of three overarching institutional goals for 2000-2010:

- Building the new learning environment
- Research investment
- Competing in a global economy

In 2004, as part of an effort to build on those unit-level strategic plans and fully operationalize the institutional strategic plan, a two-phased "Five-Year Program Planning" process was implemented. The overall goal of that process was to further improve integration of the unit plans with the University budget development and resource allocation process in a manner even more directly linked to institutional priorities. Each of the University's colleges and schools and major administrative units adopted five-year plans for the second half of the decade as part of that process.

As the period covered by the 2000-2010 Strategic Plan drew to a close, a committee was appointed to examine the strategic framework for the University's next decade and propose a new strategic plan, including measurable benchmarks for progress for each priority area. That plan was submitted to the University Council in spring 2010 and approved. That plan assures that the University's well-established system of planning, evaluation, and continuous improvement will continue to guide the current decade at the University.

Seven strategic directions are outlined in the 2010 University of Georgia Strategic Plan.

- Building on Excellence in Undergraduate Education
- Enhancing Graduate and Professional Programs
- Investing in Proven and Emerging Areas of Research Excellence at UGA
- Serving the Citizens of the State of Georgia and Beyond
- Improving Faculty Recruitment, Retention and Development
- Improving and Maintaining Facilities and Infrastructure to Provide Excellence in Instruction, Research and Service
- Improving Stewardship of Natural Resources and Advancing Campus Sustainability

Rugged Beginnings

1785

Known as the father of the University of Georgia, Abraham Baldwin sites the campus in Athens and drafts legislation that becomes the University's Charter in 1785.

1801

In the same year Clarke County is formed, UGA as Franklin College holds its first classes in a log cabin.

1833

Founding of UGA's first Botanical Garden.

1834

Alumni Society is first organized.

1858

The North Campus fence and gateway Arch are erected to keep out livestock.

1859

Trustees accept plan to reorganize UGA into four schools: medicine, agriculture, engineering

Administration

Construction challenges and Native-American uprisings in Georgia's frontier delay the institution's opening for 16 years.

Franklin College, later renamed Old College, became the first permanent structure on campus in 1806, the same year the city of Athens was incorporated.

Alonzo Church (1829-59), oversaw the completion of the University Chapel in 1832.

UGA's first classes were taught by Josiah Meigs, UGA's first active president (1801-10). In 1804, he presided over the first Commencement services, awarding the first honorary degrees.

The University suspends operations since most students had withdrawn to fight in the Civil War.	First social fraternity is organized (Sigma Alpha Epsilon). 	UGA is designated as a state Land Grant institution, beginning a public service mission that has grown to be the largest and most comprehensive of its kind in the country.	First school yearbook, The Pandora , is issued.	Trustees adopt resolution to establish Georgia Experiment Station in Griffin.	Intercollegiate athletics are introduced; chemistry professor Charles Herty is named head football coach.	UGA's first newspaper, The Red and Black , is published.

Admissions

Above, students gathered for a game of baseball in 1890 on the University's athletic grounds that would later be called Herty Field. Two years later UGA's fledgling football team played its first intercollegiate game there against Mercer University, in what was supposedly the first football game played in the Deep South. Georgia crushed Mercer by a score of 50-0.

Establishing the State College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts in 1872 as a Land Grant college allowed UGA to use federal funds available from the Morrill Act passed by Congress a decade earlier.

UGA's first alumnus to serve as president, Walter B. Hill (1899-1905), strove to create his vision of a modern, progressive university.

LEADERSHIP ► DISCOVERY ► OPPORTUNITY
1785-2010

Memorial Hall opened in 1925 to commemorate UGA students killed in WWI and was the main student union until the Tate Student Center opened in 1982.

Prior to becoming president in 1932, Stead V. Sanford was the driving force behind building the athletic center named in his honor.

Enrollment

As the 20th century began, students, faculty, and the local community mixed it up at a carnival in downtown Athens

When UGA first opened its doors to women in 1918, they were allowed admission into the College of Agriculture's Department of Home Economics (above) or the Peabody School of Education.

"G Club" members gather around a favorite Athens hangout.

Electric lights were added to the Arch in 1946.

The Arch was patterned after the one on Georgia's Great Seal. The Arch itself represents the state constitution, and the three columns supporting it represent wisdom, justice, and moderation.

UGA commissioned Athens Foundry to build a new wrought-iron gate and fence.

Heavy gates that were closed to secure the campus were removed from the fence.

Daniel Huntley Redfeam is credited as the originator of the legend that all incoming freshmen walk around the arch or they would not graduate.

Electric lights were added to the top of the Arch in 1946. It was moved about 50 feet away from the T-shirts to UGA staff business cards.

In 1858 UGA commissioned Athens Foundry to build a new wrought-iron gate and fence to replace the battered wood fence that surrounded the campus. The money for the project was raised by selling UGA's original botanical gardens, located west of the campus.

Honoring the Past; Looking to the Future

Physical Facilities

Beyond the planned events commemorating 225 years since the University's Charter was passed into law, this anniversary is also an opportunity to take another—and perhaps different—view of UGA's past, evaluate its present, and examine its plans for the future.
